SERIOUS RUSSIAN FAILURE.

LONDON, 16th March, 1892.
Great dismay has been created in St. Petersburg by the reported failure of a banker named Gouderburg with liabilities amounting to 6,000,000 roubles.

The failure affects Berlin also.

(From the N.C. Daily News.)

UNION CHURCH.—SUNDAY, MARCH 20TH, 11 A.M.
Psalm, 4: 4; Anthem, 24; Alleluia, Hymns, 15, 151 and 257.

The Superintendent of the P. & O. Co. informs us that the Company's steamer Ariste, from Australia, left Port Darwin on the 15th March, calling at Timor.

To-day at the Magistracy Mr. Wodehouse has freed a boatman $500, with the alternative of two months' imprisonment, for having in his possession 47 juncs and 9 mace of loose opium.

At a private meeting in the offices of the P. & O. Company this afternoon, it was, we understand, resolved by the launch agents of Hongkong to petition His Excellency the Governor against certain provisions in the new Ordinance.

He was, tailor, was charged before Mr. Wodehouse at the Magistracy this morning with stealing nine pieces of clothing from Teng Sang, shopkeeper, Shaukiwan. It appeared from the evidence the complainant and the defendant arrived from Canton by the steamer Tai. On about two o'clock this morning, just before the steamer arrived the complainant missed the bundle containing his clothes, finding that a bundle somewhat resembling his but full of dirty rags and rubbish had been substituted for it. A fruitless search was made for the missing bundle, but the defendant was observed leaving it on the arrival of the Tai at the wharf, and he was arrested near the Harbour Office. Sentence of six months' imprisonment was passed.

At the Magistracy to-day, Samuel Lavery, stoker, H.M.S. Archer, was brought before Mr. Wodehouse charged with having, yesterday, assaulted a Chinese servant belonging to the Victor Emmanuel. The complainant stated that he was walking along Wellington Street when he was knocked down by Lavery, and on getting up he was hit on the eye and mouth. He did not previously know the prisoner, and had never seen him before. The constable said he saw the defendant running, followed by a crowd of Chinamen. He arrested the prisoner near the Victoria Hotel. The defendant stated that the complainant ran away with his hat. On overtaking him, he knocked down the complainant. It was intimated that the defendant bore an excellent character. Mr. Wodehouse fined him $10, with the alternative of three weeks' imprisonment.

Our correspondent adds: "The Administration received dollars and pays dollars, yet it is going to enforce a charge of 1 per cent. as remittance fee, will not pay its money to the agents of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank here, dollars for dollars." What next? every one here is asking."

A new Bank Act was lately passed in Cape Colony, which makes it easier for £1, £10, £20, and £50 notes to be issued. The notes will arrive at the Cape in December last. The £10 notes are of the size of the American $5 dollar note. As yet they have not been put into circulation.

A GENUINE HOGARTH.—It is said, just been discovered during the valuation of the contents of a country residence near Hythe belonging to an old country family. A London expert has offered a large sum of money for the picture, which the owner has declined.

We learn from the Shanghai Mercury that the Snow, a steamer, wrecked last year, owing to the assistance of the ill-fated s. s. Yenmen, is to be replaced by a new steamer, at an early date; and that the German steamer Hainan, 647 tons, has been chartered by a Native firm in Shanghai for $3,500, to run in the Northern trade during the season just opened.

While men were losing money last year, and perhaps still more, the consumption of such luxuries as wine, the beer or spirit-drinking classes remained more than ever. The Indian Revenue Office have compiled a statement showing that the quantity of spirits required for consumption as a beverage last year was 30,745,209 gallons, compared with 29,410,461 gallons in 1890. This was also a great increase on the consumption of the previous year.

A Foochow correspondent writes to the Foochow Lloyd:—On the 3rd inst., a tiger was killed by the country people in the vicinity of Pagoda Anchorage, where his tigress had destroyed dozens of pigs, goats, and even cattle, during the last two months. It was a splendid, full-grown male, the carcass measuring over seven feet. The paws measured seven inches in diameter. The flesh was sold in Foochow, and found willing purchasers amongst the Natives. (Tiger-lions are a highly-prized medicine amongst the Chinese.)

Mr. Spurgeon, in one of his addresses to his students, urged them to go always direct to the point in addressing their fellow-men. There was nothing gained, he said, by beating about the bush. It was not the practice of men of the world who wanted to gain any object to beat about the bush, and neither should it be the practice of men who wished to convert others. To illustrate what he meant by going direct to the point, he told how he had once engaged a labouring man to help him digging for a moment with spade and pick-axe, for a moment with shovel and raking for a moment from his forehead. "It's a hot day," said Mr. Spurgeon sympathetically. "Yes it is," said the man, looking straight at Mr. Spurgeon, "and I never seen a man look more like standing a pint of beer than my life." "That man," said Mr. Spurgeon, "went straight to the point."

There is a silver mine near Sarhad, in Afghan territory, which has a curious history. Three men were sent from that country to Kabul, the residence of the Amir, to be executed for an offence against the State. They told the Amir that if he would let them off, they would tell him where he could find abundant supplies of silver. The Amir deferred the execution and sent them under guard to Jashakhan, where they went to work digging. They, and the men who were put to work with them, laboured hard, finding shelter, and they could dig for seven days more, and if they did not find what they were looking for, within that time the sentence of death would be carried out. The next day they came to a very rich vein of silver, and now about one hundred men are employed in the mine, which was visited last summer by an English traveller.

A Paris Correspondent says that the public execution in Paris intends to retire into private life on account of his advanced age. During his long official career, M. Delibier has headed two hundred and eighteen persons. After the first time he was always very cool at his office business. He lived with his wife and son, who served as his assistant, in a modest apartment near the Boulevard de Villette. M. Delibier is a passionate violinist, practising early every morning. One day, says the "Rome," on his way to a provincial town, where he had to execute a criminal, M. Delibier met a gentleman whom he entered into conversation on criminal law. Delibier showed him a thorough knowledge of the subject, but the gentleman believed him to be some high official, and invited him to dinner. When on reaching his host's house he announced his name, all the people in the room immediately left.

WHEN a judge has to call attention to a legal scandal, the case is a bad one. In the Queen's Bench Court recently, a case was mentioned in which judgment had been obtained against a wife and husband for £100. The amount was for rent, and Mrs. Gibbons had disputed the fact that the so-called house was therefore not in tenable condition. The verdict was probably in accordance with law, but Mr. Justice Grantham pointed out that the £100 had been incurred. His Lordship mildly observed that "this was one of the most scandalous things he had ever heard of."

The Directors of the Yang-tze Insurance Association, Ltd., having consulted Messrs. Watson & Deacon, solicitors, Hongkong, by telegraph, and having been advised in reply that the late confirmatory meeting of the Association was "bad though not invalid," the prescribed time not having been allowed to elapse) have thought it best to call another extraordinary general meeting, to be held on Saturday next, the 18th instant, at 11.30 a.m., to submit for confirmation the resolutions passed at the meeting of the Association held on the 22nd instant.

A genuine Hogarth has, it is said, just been discovered during the valuation of the contents of a country residence near Hythe belonging to an old country family. A London expert has offered a large sum of money for the picture, which the owner has declined.

WEATHER AMONGST INCIDENTS.—A rather amusing incident came to light in the course of an ordinary general meeting of the Board of Trade, held on Saturday last, to consider the question whether Mr. C. P. Wheeler, officiating Judge of Jamaica, had or had not delivered a written judgment in a certain case.

It appeared that, on the Judicial Secretary inquiring officially of Mr. Wheeler as to the result of another criminal trial intimately connected with that which had just been disposed of, Mr. Wheeler telegraphed "Yes, stone jug twenty-four months," meaning thereby, it seems, that the accused had been sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment. Naturally the message was found unintelligible at head-quarters.

ALUMINUM is to be dug not only the bear glasses, but even the adored bear mug of the South Germans. Dr. Schultz of Vienna alarmed the bear-keepers about a year ago by his declaration that bear not only deteriorated in a few minutes by being kept in a glass, but that the glazed earthenware "Krug" with its metal top, afforded no protection to the evanescent qualities of the liquor of King Gambrinus and John Bullwinkle. Power pots, says Dr. Schultz, are good and silver pots are better; but best of all is the aluminium mug. So the doctor advises the manufacture of aluminium pots, which would be forty times cheaper than silver, and half the weight of power.

The Spectator, commenting on Spurgeon's funeral, says:—The funeral services over Mr. Spurgeon were practically as elaborate as those over Cardinal Manning.

The body lay in state in the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Tuesday and Wednesday, and was visited by six thousand persons, many of whom were engaged in four memorial services. On Thursday the coffin was conveyed to Newmarket Cemetery in a vast procession, which included, we are glad to perceive, the Bishop of Rochester, and which was saluted at all points of the long journey by crowds even greater than those which attended the funeral of Cardinal Manning.

The funeral said he thought it would be well to bring the matter up before the Board, in order to satisfy the public.
